

Get a jump start on this year's flu season.

Secure your flu clinics now.

Don't let the flu knock out your workforce! Host a flu shot clinic this fall and help keep your employees healthy and productive during the influenza season. It's never too early to begin preparing.

Did you know that an employer flu shot clinic is a low cost solution to managing your overall medical costs? Think about it:

- + Flu season can bring increased absenteeism, high medical costs, and decreased employee productivity.
- + Complications from the flu can require hospitalization.
- + Employees who get a flu shot are less likely to take time off because they are sick. And getting a flu shot at a worksite clinic saves employees – and you – time and money while supporting good health.

How flu shot clinics work

We make it easy for you. Maxim Health Systems, our flu clinic partner, will send a team of nurses to your worksite to provide flu shots to employees covered by preventive benefits from BCBSNC and, if you'd like, their family members. Members simply have to present a valid BCBSNC ID card and photo ID to receive a shot.

From there, everything is handled. Maxim submits a claim for the shot to BCBSNC and the claim is processed according to the member's benefit plan. The member is responsible for any applicable copayment, coinsurance, or deductible that may apply to the claim.

Enroll now to host a clinic

Clinic spots are first-come, first-served, so complete the flu clinic request form as soon as you can. Visit bcbsnc.com/fluclinic to access the form for commercial groups. For a State Health Plan form, please visit www.bcbsnc.com/ncfluclinic. If you are interested in hosting a worksite flu clinic, please complete request. Here are some important points to remember:

- + The worksite must be able to guarantee that at least 25 flu shots will be given per clinic.
- + If you have multiple worksites, one form must be completed for each site.
